SURT1210 - Surgical Technology I

Credits:	6 (3/3/0)
Description:	This course introduces the student to the role of the surgical technologist in the operating room and introduces the foundation for patient care in the operating room.
Prerequisites:	Acceptance into Surgical Technology program
Corequisites:	• SURT1200
Pre/Corequisites * :
Competencies:	<ol> <li>Identify principles of asepsis and infection control.</li> <li>Describe basic safety concepts.</li> <li>Describe the time-out procedure for surgical patients.</li> <li>Explore perioperative phases: preoperative, intraoperative, postoperative, recovery.</li> <li>Explain standards of care in the operating room.</li> <li>Name and describe body planes, and demonstrate knowledge of body organization and terms of reference.</li> <li>Identify types of tissues that make up organs and the characteristics of each.</li> <li>Describe organs of the body and identify the components of different tissues and body systems.</li> <li>Explain preoperative preparation of the surgical patient.</li> <li>Identify types of equipment used in modern operating rooms.</li> <li>Identify types of equipment used in modern operating nooms.</li> <li>Identify tops of asepsis and infection control.</li> <li>Define medical terminology and abbreviations used in surgery, including international time.</li> <li>Demonstrate principles of asepsis and infection control.</li> <li>Demonstrate principles of asepsis and infection control.</li> <li>Demonstrate principles of asepsis and infection control.</li> <li>Demonstrate principles of and techniques used for sterilization, sanitation and disinfection of equipment and the operating room environment.</li> <li>Perform time-out procedures correctly.</li> <li>Identify and apply basic principles of physics to safe patient care.</li> <li>Identify and apply basic principles of physics to safe patient care.</li> <li>Demonstrate standards of care in the operating room.</li> <li>Demonstrate standa</li></ol>

*Can be taking as a Prerequisite or Corequisite.